Crime Information Bureau

The 2011 CIB Conference was Sept 21st – 23rd in Green Bay. Based on feedback I received at the conference and survey comments, the conference was a success, thanks to all of you in attendance. Your input and participation is what makes this conference what it is. I hope to see you again next year.

CIB is commonly known for two primary program responsibilities: the TIME System and the Wisconsin criminal history repository. Not commonly known is that CIB also operates the Handgun Hotline. Wisconsin is known as a “partial point of contact state”, where firearm dealers contact CIB to conduct a background check for all handgun sales. Long gun sales (shotguns and rifles) are processed by the FBI’s National Instant Criminal Background Check System. On November 1st, 2011 Wisconsin Act 35 became effective and will add issuance of concealed carry licenses to CIB’s responsibilities. In addition to impacting CIB’s daily duties, Act 35 impacts the TIME System as well. New TIME System transactions have been created to allow law enforcement personnel access to the concealed carry database under circumstances authorized by the statutes.. Act 35 is very specific about when law enforcement is authorized to access this information and the requirements for control of the data. I encourage you to review the additional information on the DOJ website <http://www.doj.state.wi.us/dles/cib/ConcealedCarry/ConcealedCarry.asp> and WILENET.

CIB received an Nlets grant to aid in the implementation of sharing driver photos electronically over the TIME System. A condition of the grant was that CIB also implement sharing of in-state only warrants with other states. On October 9th, 2011, CIB implemented changes to allow other states with this functionality to access Wisconsin in-state only warrants stored in the CIB hotfiles. A common question I hear is: Why would other states care if they can’t take any enforcement action, since the warrants are non-extraditable? During criminal investigations or employment background checks it may be beneficial to law enforcement to know that outstanding warrants exist in Wisconsin. For example, an individual could be wanted in Wisconsin for the same offense they are being investigated for in another state, leading to contact between the two agencies proving beneficial to both. Please let your staff know that this new functionality exists. The Portal 100 and eTIME Browser software include the ability for Wisconsin users to query other states non-extraditable warrants if the state supports these transactions. A query of the Nlets Help File, NLSWQHELP, will indicate which participate. Please feel free to contact me or any of the CIB staff to discuss your thoughts on how we can continue to improve.

WALT NEVERMAN

Director CIB

CCW and You

Since implementation of Wisconsin Act 35 (Wisconsin's concealed carry law), numerous law enforcement personnel and others routinely contact CIB and others at the Wisconsin Department of Justice with numerous questions: What does this mean for me? Will I be able to check a person's concealed carry license status via the TIME System? When can I check a person's concealed carry license status? etc...

To help answer these questions, the DOJ has compiled a list of frequently asked questions (FAQ's) regarding the concealed carry law and posted this information online. Two versions of these FAQ's exist. The public can find answers to their CCW questions on the DOJ website, <http://www.doj.state.wi.us/dles/cib/ConcealedCarry/ConcealedCarry.asp>. Another version of the FAQ's dealing with issues specific to law enforcement can be found on WILENET at <https://wilenet.org/secure/html/ccw.htm>.

The law also requires DOJ to establish a list of states that issue a license to carry a concealed weapon, if that license requires a background search that is comparable to the type of background check that is required for Wisconsin licensees. Any person who is at least 21 years of age, who is not a Wisconsin resident, and who holds a valid concealed carry license issued by any of the states on DOJ's list will be recognized in Wisconsin as an out-of-state licensee). This list can also be found on the DOJ website.

In addition, the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources has compiled a list of DNR and hunting specific questions regarding the new concealed carry law and made these questions and answers available on their website at http://dnr.wi.gov/org/es/enforcement/concealed_carry_q&a.htm.

The Eyes Have It...

Recently a user contacted CIB with a question about the physical descriptive information listed on someone's Wisconsin Department of Transportation driver's license record. They indicated the record displayed an eye color code of "DICH". They had never seen this code before, and wondered what it meant.

"DICH" is an abbreviation for dichromatic: having or showing two colors. In other words, each of the subject's eyes are a different color; for example one eye may be blue and the other green.

For future reference, DOT has provided the following list of eye color abbreviations used on driver's records and their meaning:

BLCK	Black	DICH	Dichromatic	HAZL	Hazel
BLUE	Blue	GREN	Green	UNKN	Unknown
BRWN	Brown	GRAY	Gray

New Style Wisconsin Dealer & Wholesaler License Plates

On August 17, 2011 the Wisconsin Department of Transportation implemented a new style of motor vehicle dealer license plate.

The new style plate will no longer show a suffix (such as AA), the plate will simply show the dealer number. The plates are aluminum/grey in color with black lettering. These new plates may be queried via the TIME System using a license plate type code of 'DL'. This inquiry will provide you with the dealer's name and address.

New style dealer plates are being issued to new licensees and will be issued to existing licensees during the renewal process, thus law enforcement will see both old and new style dealer plates in use until the two year renewal cycle is complete on May 31, 2013. Information on old style dealer plates is not available via the TIME System.

Wholesalers will also be issued new style license plates in the same manner. The suffix has been dropped from wholesaler license plates as well, and the plates will now indicate 'wholesaler' across the bottom of the plate. In addition, beginning July 1, 2011 license plate expiration stickers have been eliminated for motor vehicle dealers, distributors, manufacturers, transporters and finance plate holders.

John Doe

As always, agencies entering records into the CIB and/or NCIC files are encouraged to pack the record, including all available information in the entry. For person records, this means entering all available alias names...with one exception.

NCIC and CIB do not allow agencies to enter the name or alias name of 'John Doe' in a person record. Due to the use of the Doe name as an all purpose alias, entry of this name results in such a large number of duplicate name hits that the system is unable to process the transaction. Please do not add another unidentified 'John Doe' to the mixture.

Advanced Authentication

Many law enforcement agencies in the state of Wisconsin are able to access the TIME System via mobile data terminals due to the generosity of others. The Wisconsin State Patrol, as well as other law enforcement agencies in the state have allowed other agencies to use their wireless computer network to obtain needed TIME System access.

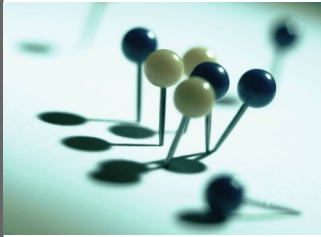

If your agency uses a mobile client(s) behind the Wisconsin State Patrol interface or another interface which currently uses a virtual private network (VPN) to meet advanced authentication requirements you should be aware of possible changes. Agencies that have implemented a VPN using IPSec from a police vehicle to meet the advanced authentication requirements are permitted to continue to use a VPN for this purpose only until January 2013. CIB encourages agencies to begin looking now into alternatives to meet changes in advanced authentication requirements.

Puerto Rico

Have you tried running a vehicle registration query or driver's license query through the territory of Puerto Rico recently? If so, you have probably discovered the following: Puerto Rico no longer responds to these Department of Motor Vehicle queries.

PIN Numbers

In the past, when adding users to your agency's TRAIN roster, agency administrator's needed to provide CIB with the user's full name (first, last and middle initial) and a four digit personal identification number or PIN. This PIN is used to verify a person's identity when they contact the TIME System Control Center or CIB requesting their password be reset or other action be taken on their user account. Many agencies used the last four characters of the person's social security number as the PIN.

CIB no longer collects PIN information when adding a subject to an agency's TRAIN roster. Instead, the first time the subject logs in to TRAIN they are prompted to type in their own PIN number and a challenge question. Providing this information allows users to reset their own password in case they forget, an also allows them to choose their own PIN number rather than having an agency assigned PIN.

As a result, CIB is requesting that agency administrator's DO NOT include an employee's full or partial social security number when requesting roster additions. Social security information is not needed by any CIB personnel.

ALPR – Automated License Plate Recognition

The use of automated license plate recognition (ALPR) systems by WI law enforcement continues to grow. With this increased use, it is helpful to review the guidelines for use of the TIME System/TIME System information with ALPR systems.

ALPR systems capture images of license plates using a video or infrared camera, which is typically mounted on or in a squad car. The images are sent to a computer interface, which then automatically searches the license plate numbers against a database - for example, a listing of stolen vehicles, felony vehicles, expired registrations, etc. If a match is made, the officer is alerted by an audible and visual signal, allowing him to take appropriate action.

So where does an agency get such a listing/database? Agencies that use automated license plate readers can get an extract from CIB listing stolen vehicles from the NCIC/CIB files and information from the DOT files on vehicles with expired/suspended plates, etc. These extracts are made available on the eTIME browser site. An authorized agency user can then login and download the desired extracts and load them into their automated license plate reader system. If an agency wishes to use these extracts, they must first sign an ALPR agreement with CIB which outlines the conditions of use of this TIME System information and ensures agency compliance with all TIME System policies and procedures.

Agencies are NOT allowed to program their ALPR system to run a TIME System query of every plate captured by the ALPR system. However, if an officer receives an alert from their ALPR system indicating a possible match, the plate in question should be queried using the live TIME System before taking enforcement action. Agencies should then follow normal hit confirmation rules. Agencies needing further information about the extracts and ALPR agreement may contact Sara Phelan via email at phelansm@doj.state.wi.us or 608-266-7955.

Criminal History Records

CIB's criminal history unit recently achieved a milestone: all available Wisconsin criminal history files are now automated. While electronic submission of fingerprint records meant newer criminal history records were fully automated, thousands of earlier, paper records and files were not. Unit staff have been working hard for the last year or more to fully automate these older records, and we are pleased to announce they have reached their goal.

Illinois License Plate Guide

TIME System users should be aware of another reference guide that may come in handy: a guide to Illinois license plate types.

The guide was compiled by the Lake County, Illinois Sheriff's Department, and includes images of the majority of Illinois license plate types, both routine and specialty. The guide provides the specific two-character plate type code that is needed to query the plate through the Illinois Department of Transportation. In addition, hints are provided for running unusual or specialty plates, such as when a hyphen or other special characters are required or not to receive a valid response. Users may wish to contact the Lake County, Illinois Sheriff's Department to obtain a copy of the guide, and be sure to express your appreciation for this information.

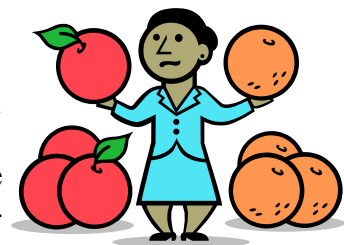

Milk Expires, and so does TRAIN

The milk you buy at a store has an expiration date. And so does a TRAIN registration.

TRAIN users and agency administrators are reminded that TRAIN online classes must be completed within six months of registration. If a user does not complete the online course within this six month period, their registration is deleted, including any partial progress that may have been made. Please ensure your agency TRAIN users complete online courses in a timely manner.

One of These Things Is Not Like the Other...

Many times an agency has multiple warrants issued for the same person. CIB files allow an agency to choose how these multiple warrants are entered: an agency may make a separate entry for each warrant or may enter only one warrant and provide information on the other existing warrants in the remarks field of the entry.

Agencies who choose to make only one entry in situations such as these are reminded that the one entry they do make should be for the most serious offense, and the remarks field should include specific information describing the offenses and bond of the non-entered warrants.

As a recent case illustrates, entering the most serious warrant and providing further information on other offenses helps ensure officer safety. The agency in question had an active warrant entry for a subject for a curfew violation, and indicated in the remarks field other warrants existed, but failed to include offense information for the other warrants – one of which was for a concealed weapons violation. Please ensure your wanted person entries reflect all available information.

Portal 100 & VINAssist

Agencies that use the Portal 100 software should be aware of an issue regarding the Portal 100 software and NICB's VinAssist program. NICB's VINAssist program allows users to 'decode' a vehicle identification number, verifying validity and revealing information about the vehicle. TIME System users have found this program to be helpful, so it was incorporated into the Portal 100 software.

However, changes have been made to both the Portal 100 software and the VINAssist program. As a result, users should be aware that if they are using a Windows 7©, 64 bit operating system, VINAssist will not function within the Portal 100 software. VINAssist does function in the Windows 7 ©, 32 bit operating system.

As a new software product will be replacing the Portal 100 software, there are no plans to address this issue. In addition, NICB now makes VIN decoding capability available online via a website, allowing for it's use on any computer with internet access. Agencies should contact NICB for information on how to obtain online access, technicalsupport@nicb.org.

Wanted Person Entries

When making wanted person entries, agencies choose whether to make the entry to the CIB files only, or to both the NCIC and CIB files.

Beginning October 9, 2011 agencies with wanted person entries should be aware that system updates now allow agencies in other states to query and view CIB only wanted person entries.

No changes are needed to how wanted person entries are made by your agency, but please make all users aware that because these CIB only wanted person entries are now available/visible to law enforcement agencies in other states. The entering Wisconsin agencies may receive questions and inquiries from law enforcement in other states.

Can You Arrest a Corpse?

During several audits CIB has encountered multiple wanted person entries for subjects that are deceased. Agencies are reminded that the validation process should involve both re-querying the subject to determine if additional information has become available, and checking all available information against the entry to ensure the entry is as accurate as possible. If the agencies holding these records had performed these validation activities, they would have found the person's deceased status clearly indicated on either a Wisconsin or out of state driver's or criminal history record. If a warrant is no longer valid because the subject is deceased, the entry should be cancelled
